- Accommodation – As there been an increase of students in need of accommodation over the last decade, it is getting increasingly more difficult to secure student accommodation throughout Europe.
- Language Barrier – A student may struggle to understand instructions and grasp concepts in the classroom and may need extra time and support to complete tasks.
- Culture Shock – which can cause feelings of uncertainty, confusion, or anxiety after they arrive in Waterford.
- Engagement – We encourage students to join clubs and engage with other students, and to step outside their comfort zone.

SETU Office for International Relations is available to all International students for any queries or concerns they may have during their stay in Waterford.

Preparing Students for their arrival to SETU Waterford

- From Application to Arrival, we have open communication with all students.
- We currently run four Online Pre-Arrival Informal Chats several weeks before the students arrive in SETU Waterford. This is an excellent way for students to ask about non-academic topics, such as weather, food and fun things to do in Waterford and Ireland. By engaging in these chats, students also get to meet and talk with other students before they arrive in Waterford.
- We offer two mandatory Orientation Programmes, online and in-person. During the online Orientation, students will hear from different Schools, Departments, Clubs and Societies and is a fantastic opportunity to become familiar with the services/ supports available as a student of SETU. The in-person Orientation is a great way to meet their fellow students and take a guided campus tour.
- We also run Continuous Orientation Wellbeing programmes throughout the semester.
- All non-EU students must apply for the Irish residences permit within 90 days of arriving in Ireland. We can provide information and assistance for this process.

Collaboration with SETU Departments

Over the years, The Office of International Relations has built up a relationship with all Schools and Departments and if the need arises to contact them, we have a dedicated contact from each School or Department.
