15 students from SIT teamed up with 13 graduate students in Aalto University and together they designed the masterplan of Toyosu area, including the local library, the international conference and convention complex, and surrounding landscape. It was a challenging program; most Aalto students had not been in Tokyo, but SIT students provided necessary information on the site through SNS and zoom. Several lectures were also provided by the professionals from both countries. For the final jury, which several professors from both university attended online, the students successfully presented their joint masterplan ideas represented by 3D models and physical models and the participants had fruitful discussions.
